

I strongly urge you to reject imposing any exemption on Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law. Since I have stopped receiving these incredibly irritating and inconvenient calls my life has been vastly improved. I will NEVER EVER EVER do business with anyone who calls me under this exemption, and I will DEFINITELY move my business elsewhere if anyone does, as inconvenient as this may be, or will at minimum spend an unpleasant half hour yelling at some innocent person.

I wish to communicate how infuriating and invasive calls like this are. I have run to the phone, from outside in a very awkward circumstance while working on the house or car (or worse) because I was expecting a call from someone important, only to hear some hired idiot reciting a page at me. Can you imagine how despicable this is?

My life has been free of these outrageous attacks on my time and privacy since the Indiana law went into effect.

There is NO EXCUSE for such calls. NONE.

Are people afraid that email spam is running ahead of them? It is ridiculous. Am I to again receive telephone spam? Does anyone out there have a brain?

This law is the best thing Indiana has done for a long time, in terms of making my life liveable. I can not more strongly object to anything that would weaken it.

Thank you.
